At the Coroner everal appearances in the Court of Crim inal Correction were made when she was dressed in a heat black tailor-made gown. In explanation of her striking gown, Mrs Journings said yesterday afternoon:

"I did not know that I was to go to court this morning until the sheriff's deputy eather down to the jail for me. I wanted him to wait until I could change my dress, but he said he had no right to do so, as he was

"Consequently, I had to go into the courtroom wearing this old pink tea gown, which I put on here in just for comjust. I have worn black so long that it is no wener those who knew me were surprised when they saw me combus into court with a pink tea gown having a long truin."

Mrs. Cummings has received an offer to go on the stage.

"She has refused the offer to her attorney, who refus a yesterday to divide the name of the person from about it zame.

"With proper training," said the attorney, which group training," said the attorney netroes. But just at this time we have other things to think of. Her case was masted over to-day until Judy 4, because I was not quite ready to go ahead with the triat. The State also was not overly anxiom to try the case.

"I will say that the men who wished to put Mrs. Cummings on the stage is in a position to do so. He ts a well-known mannager, and has been successful in nearly all of his theatical ventures.

"He expresses the belief that Mrs. Cummings is innocent of any premeditated crime, and that when she effort Cummings, which we do not deny, whe did so in silf-defense. He feels that she is a wromod woman and has volunteered to provide a bond for her in the Harris case if she is acquired in

Mrs. Cummings appeared in court vesterday morning to answer the charge of murder in the second degree. Two charges are

It was the Cummings case on which she her second husband.

It was the Cummings case on which she was to be tried yesterday. Her counsel, John I. Martin, and Charles E. I. Thomas, announced that they would like a little more time to prepare for the trial. Judge Douglas then passed the case d wn the docket to July 6. Golonel Martin stated that this would be ample time for the defense to get reads.

What is regarded by court attaches as a peculiar coincidence came when the names of the petit jurors were called. Among them was that of E. M. Harris, the man who Mrs. Cummings is charged with killing, was called. The jury list was selected fearly four years ago, when Hurris was living.

Opinion is divided as to whether the appearance of Harris's mame on the jury list is a good or bad own for the defendant. The incident was freely discussed around the Four Court's yesterday. Some thought it favorable to the defendant; others believed the opposite.

"It is just one of those peculiar coincidences that have occurred in my life many times," said Mrs. Cummings. "For my part it has no importance. I do not cure to discuss it."

Mrs. Cummings is a great reader. She has read nearly all the books in the library of the juli. She is found of the n voke with a melodramatic tendency, and stated yesterday that if she should ever decide to go on the stage, she believed she would prefer

At a special election, to be held one week from to-day, an amendment to the City Charter, requiring three-fifths of the total ald, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the vote cast, will be submitted to the qualified electors for the purpose of authorizing the They were married November 3, 1885, They Mayor to order another special election, at occupied separate aparements on the same premises from the summer of 1895 until June 12 last. She is living with her son, Frank Menke of No. 4119 North Twentieth municipality for the purposes mentioned. This election is not intended to confer any authority upon the city to issue bonds or impose taxes. It paves the way for a contemplated bond issue in the future, which will not be possible until the voters have again signified their approval by a two-THE VANUALIA succeeded in gotting its moon train of Sunday out of Union Station and started cast over its own tracks. again signified their approval by a two-thirds majority. If the amendment to be voted upon Tuesday is defeated the second election will not be possible, and consequently there will be no bond issue.

WHY ELECTIONS ARE NECESSARY.

Under previous Charter amendments it was intended that power to issue these bonds should be given to the city, but Judge Dilion, a New York attorney, who is regarded by those dealing in bonds on Wall street as an authority upon the legality of this class of paper, held that proper nuthority was lacking, because the amendments did not express specific purposes for which the money was to be used.

It is the object of the election Tuesday, and will be that of another to be held at some later date, to remedy these legal imperfections pointed out by Judge Dilion and make it possible for the city to dispose of the bends to the best advantage. Local authorities have pronounced the bond issue legal under the old amendments, but as the amount is large speculators are careful that there should be no flaw in them.

AUTHORITY TO MAYOR.

Should the proposed amendment be adopt-WHY ELECTIONS ARE NECESSARY.

Should the proposed amendment be adopted at the election Tuesday, William F. Woerner, Associate City Counselor, says, the Mayor may call another election at such a time as he may decree and submit the question of a proposed issuance of bonds to the veters for their final approval.

It will not be an issue in the special election Tuesday whether the city shall issue bends, but a question of whether the voter wishes the bond proposition submitted.

It does not authorize the issuance of any bonds by the city or impose any tax.

A majority of three-fifths of the voters is necessary before the bond issue proposition can be submitted to the voter, and then a two-thirds majority is necessary tefore the issue is approved.

Two special elections are necessary to perfect the bonds nefore they will be acceptable in the money markets.
Purposes for which it is intended to apply the money to be derived from the bonds are enumerated in the ordinance providing for Tuesday's special election as follows:

It was learned that he and his family had reached the home of Anspaugh's parents, in the western part of the county, thirty miles away, over highways and fields, and through the forest. They had walked the entire distance. The trip must have been a most painful one to the little boy and girl.

The couple were married July 9 last, at Columbia, Ill., and separated November 21. He said he was willing for his wife's friends to call on her, but objected to having spiritualistic scances held at his house.
